NEWTON, N.J. -- As our veterans and their families try to acclimate to a peaceful civilian life together, many of us know that the scope of their challenge seems monumental. Even decades after their return to civilian and family life, too many are still suffering. But what most of us do not know is that both CranioSacral Therapy (CST) and Emotional Freedom Techniques (EFT) have clinically proven track records for helping military families heal from the trauma of combat and positively deal with adjustments of being home. Upledger Institute International (<http://www.upledger.com>) and Veterans Stress Project (<http://stressproject.org>) have a wealth of information and clinical research on how these modalities can help bring peace and a sense of normalcy back to our military veterans and their loved ones.

Our team at The Tree of Health Center is doing their part to help bring our heroes back to a place of good health and balance by offering a 50% discount on all of our services, including CST & EFT, for the month of November to military veterans and their families.

Linda Mitchell, Founder and Partner at The Tree of Health Center, says, "We are honored to offer these services to our local heroes. It is truly a gift to be able to offer clinically proven, noninvasive therapies to the military families in our own community who desperately need it."

We welcome our veterans to the oasis of warmth and caring at The Tree of Health Center. Come learn about and experience natural techniques that can gently lead you to a sense of peace and well-being.
